Historical Note

Catholic Relief Services, originally known as War Relief Services, was formed in 1944, toward the end World War II. The main purpose of the Catholic Relief Services was to provide material and monetary relief for refugees displaced by World War II. The War Relief Services was formed by the Catholic Bishops in the United States as a branch of the National Catholic Welfare Conference (NCWC). The NCWC is an annual meeting of the American hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church, established in 1919 as a successor to the National Catholic War Council, which supervised and unified American Catholic charitable work during World War I. Although the NCWC originally intended to shut down War Relief Services at the end of the war, the name was changed to Catholic Relief Services, and its work was expanded into different parts of the world, maintaining its original mission of helping refugees and other victims of conflict, later expanding its mission to help those suffering in the developing world.

Scope & Content Note

The collection mainly consists of material related to the New York branch of the War Relief Services / Catholic Relief Services for the years between 1943 and 1957. Much of the collection is correspondence between Francis Spellman, Archbishop of New York, and the current director of the Catholic Relief Services. The correspondence gives insight into the organization and operation of the activities of the Catholic Relief Services in New York and overseas, as well information about the annual meeting of the board of the organization and materials and reports prepared either by or for the board.

Arrangement

---

The collection is arranged in 2 series: Series I: Correspondence; and Series II: Reports. The original arrived at the repository organized chronologically, and the original order was respected wherever possible
